Changing U.S. perceptions of East Asians

Before 1960s-70s:

- Ethnically undesirable others
- Full of filth and disease
- Marginal members of the human race
- Illiterate, undesirable, and unassimilable
- Denied the right to naturalize, intermarry
- Residentially segregated
- The enemy, forced into internment camps (WWII)

Changing U.S. perceptions of East Asians

Last 50 years:

- Plucky, 'credit to their race'
- Provider of electronics, cars
- Assimilating into culture
- Masters of high tech
- Model Minority

International News Coverage in U.S.

Model Minority Myth:

- Asian-Americans are better than other minorities
- Born successes, particularly in tech fields
- Quiet, hardworking, industrious
- Universal achievers through some combination of:
 - Innate abilities
 - Crazy work ethic
 - Relentless family pressure
 - Immigrant striving
 - Willingness to adapt
 - Not trying to lead

International News Coverage in U.S.

Model Minority Myth problems:

- Patronizing, condescending tone
- Assumes all Asians are the same
- Assumes other ethnicities are inferior
- Creates unrealistic expectations within culture
- Creates tensions across cultures
- Assumes Asians shielded against racism
- Puts people from 48 countries into one box
- In its own way, reinforces otherness
- Seems to only apply to East Asians
- 'There is no nice racism'
